" You are blessed to have the opportunities and experiences of a university education. Not everyone has that. It is not your choice to go out and make a difference in the world, it is your responsibility."

In these four years we get to decide who we are going to be. We get to discover and develop our passion. We grow.

Often we become so concentrated in reaching our branches out towards the sun, solely focused on what will come next.

Remember, though, that it is not how far you can reach your branches that will make you stronger. It is how deeply you are rooted.

We never forget those four years of bliss and discovery. Never stop reminiscing. As the Santa Clara University community, we will always be...

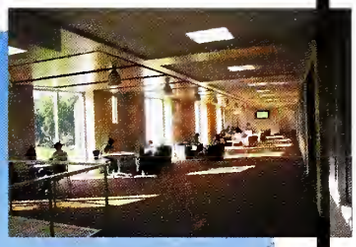
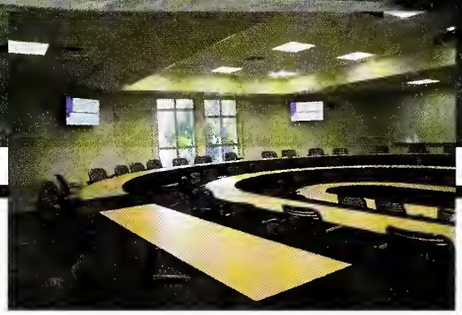
ACADEMICS

Santa Clara University is full of legacy. With many graduates coming back as teachers, and second, third, even fourth generation students following in their families' footsteps by attending SCU, we have years of traditions and memories under our belt. Without the strong academics of the university, none of this legacy would continue. Santa Clara prides itself on the versatility of its classes as well as the opportunities it offers through various programs on campus. The University does all it can to fully educate its students and insure that they graduate in four years more prepared for the world and ready to start the next chapter in their lives. Santa Clara provides an education that people carry with them throughout their lives, helping them to find ways to enrich and better the world around them. The Santa Clara legacy is passed down through generations by the spread of education and service that every Santa Claran embodies.

Expanding Our Roots

The New Buildings on Campus

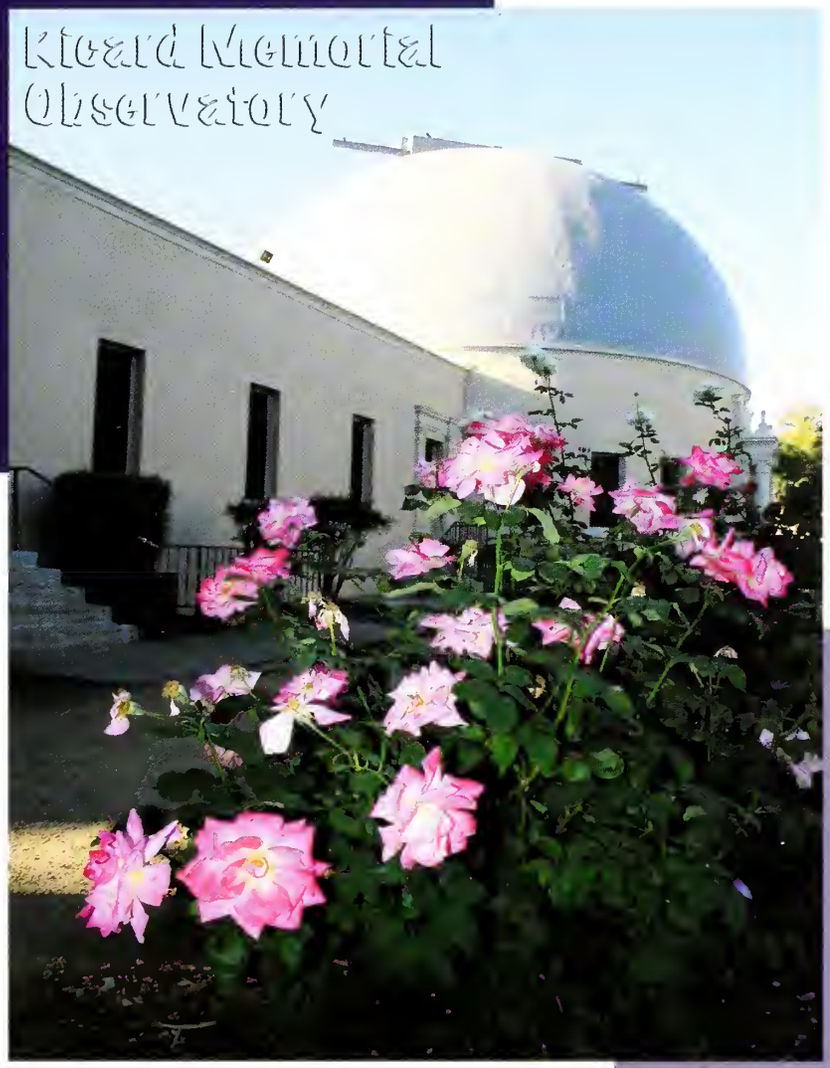




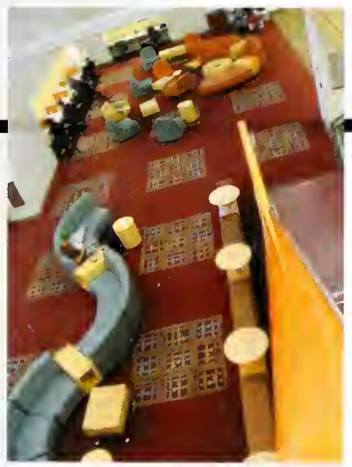
Santa Clara University's Lucas Hall is the new facility for The Leavey School of Business. Equipped with twelve classrooms, six executive-style conference rooms, and sixteen team project rooms, this building offers state-of-the-art technology for students, faculty and staff.

The Robert F. Benson Memorial Center has definitely come full circle from the time it was first built in 1963 when it housed sixteen billiard tables, eight bowling lanes, the Red Lounge, and a hair salon. Today, this complex includes numerous facilities such as The Bronco (SCU's late-night food and social venue), the Information Desk, Market Square, Mission Bakery and Terrace Cafe, Shapell Lounge, the bookstore, post office, the office of Campus Ministry, and the offices for undergraduate student government and various student organizations. All of these diverse organizations offer countless opportunities for students to explore Santa Clara University outside of the classroom.

Ricard Memorial Observatory



The Ricard Memorial Observatory is named after Jerome S. Ricard, S.J., who was most famous for his sunspot theory of weather forecasting. He was known as "Padre of the rain" because of his ability to predict rainfall. Today, this historic building is used by the archeaology department.



Harrington Learning Commons, Sobrato Technology Center and Oradre Library

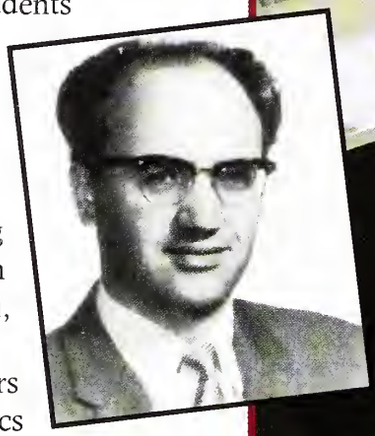
The Harrington Learning Commons, Sobrato Technology Center and Oradre Library were the talk of the campus at the beginning of the school year. This complex includes numerous resources to assist both students and faculty. The library's collection houses 792,138 volumes, almost 600,000 government documents, and more than 841,000 microform units. With comfortable lounge areas, individual study tables as well as group study rooms, the library offers a great place to hit the books or a quiet environment to just sit back and relax.

FACULTY

Changing Lives, Now & Then

Our professors have dedicated their lives to enhancing our education. We are fortunate to have the best and the brightest here to offer their years of wisdom and inspiration to us.

A select few have started their teaching career in the 1960s and 1970s. In fact, some of these professors were once students of Santa Clara, returning to their roots to each the following generations of broncos. Math Professor Lenard Klosinski graduated from SCU in 1961, returning to teach another fellow Math Professor, Dennis Smolarski, graduate of 1969.



Of all the professors at Santa Clara, Economics Professor Mario Belotti takes the prize in teaching the longest at SCU. He started his career in 1960. What has kept Prof. Belotti here for all these years? Could it be the sunny weather? The community atmosphere? "Since joining Santa Clara University, I have always found the students, faculty and administrators academically rich and the overall teaching environment very satisfying. I never thought about teaching somewhere else," says Professor Belotti. "My greatest satisfaction is to see our students growing intellectually and professionally."

The mission of the College of Arts and Sciences, the largest college within Santa Clara University, is to educate leaders of competence, conscience and compassion through a humanistic, Jesuit education in the liberal arts and sciences. The College achieves this by providing thirty five different majors, over fourty minors, and various core curricular programs for students in the arts, letters, sciences, and professions. In addition, the College sponsors a variety of other events, programs, scholarships, and services to enrich the intellectual, artistic, cultural, and spiritual lives of individuals and of the community.

"The College of Arts and Sciences at Santa Clara University juxtaposes the innovation and intellectual vitality of Silicon Valley with ethical integrity, social responsibility, and a commitment to justice and the common good. We are committed to our students and their development as individuals who think critically, communicate effectively, appreciate and respect diversity, and f on preparing for life. "

Business School

Getting the job done

Santa Clara's Leavey School of Business wants to develop their students into leaders that are ready for the fast pace world. Along with teaching students these skills, the completion of the new business school can also help strength their technological skills with all the new technology the school has to offer students.

Spotlight on Adam Marinucci

1. How has class at SCU helped you? The business school has not only educated me on the skills and techniques I need for the business world, but opened my eyes to how important business actually is in the real world. On top of that, the professors at the Leavey School of Business have always emphasized a high standard of business ethics, since the real world lacks those values and standards.

2. What was your internship? I was part of the iPhone PR team over at Apple in Cupertino.

3. How does your internship help you reach this goal? My internship definitely opened up many doors to Apple, but more importantly, I learned great business skills such as professional communication, networking, and relationship building that I will take with me wherever I may end up...even if it's on stage rockin' people's socks off!

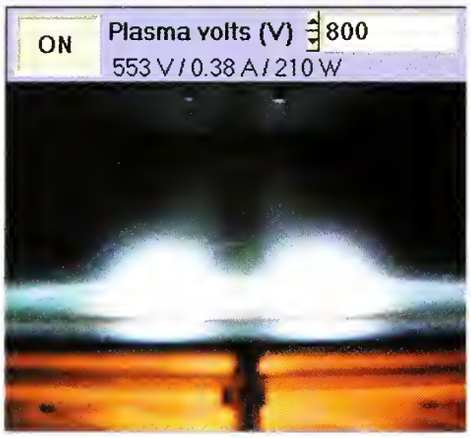
"Working at the Center for Nanostructures has been a lot of fun, while also allowing me to perform research in a cutting-edge field as an undergraduate."
~Zefram Mark



Above is the chamber in which the nanotubes are grown.

To the right is the structural image of a carbon nanotube.

The Engineering school at Santa Clara requires that every Engineering major does a senior project. Students often get very creative on their last project in college. Two seniors, Zefram Mark and Cole Li, both Electrical Engineering majors and Math minors, are working together with carbon nanotubes. What is a carbon nanotube you might ask? It is a cylindrical structure made of carbon that is 1000 times smaller than a human hair! Nanotubes are stronger than steel for their size and conduct heat and electricity very well. These properties make them desirable for use in many fields.

Carbon nanotubes are the next step in better chips for computers. Mark and Li are studying the electrical properties of carbon nanotubes to see how they could be used as parts on an integrated circuit within chips. Integrated circuits use many small copper wires to connect the different parts of the chip. However, as chips get smaller, it gets harder to make the copper wires work well. By studying carbon nanotubes, Mark and Li are trying to see if it is possible to replace the copper wires with the smaller nanotubes.

The Center for Nanostructures within the Engineering Department at Santa Clara has been researching the use of carbon nanotubes within integrated circuits since 2007. Mark worked with them his junior year and turned the research into his senior project this year. Stanford labs are used to make simple chips, which are then brought back to Santa Clara and used to test the nanotubes. The Stanford Nanofabrication Facility rents out time to other universities and companies, providing a place for them to use specialized equipment to make test structures. Mark and Li chose nanotubes as their senior projects because they are currently a hot topic in engineering, and could help them in the future. After college, Mark plans to attend Grad School and enter the engineering industry; Li plans to do research on an individual scale and eventually work for a defense company.

"I think Solomon Ibn Gabriol best describes the phases of the Solar Decathlon when he says, 'The first step in the acquisition of wisdom is silence, the second listening, the third memory, the fourth practice, the fifth teaching others.' First, we are quiet as the past leaders begin to phase out of the project and the new team begins. Second, we listen to our professors in class and our advisors at team meetings. Third, we memorize rules. Fourth, we design and build. Last, and most importantly, we compete, we educate others, and we spread the word through our outreach program."
~Allison Kopf

The Solar Decathlon Team of 2007 made news when they won third place overall, even after many mishaps, including being the last team accepted in the competition, being the last team to arrive, and having materials break during the trip to Washington, D.C. The fully solar powered, maximum 500 square foot house includes all the amenities of a typical house. The competition is split into ten different challenges, including electrical, mechanical, marketing and design. This year's team is preparing for the 2009 competition. One of the biggest changes planned is the new partnership with California College of the Arts, an architectural school, which will help with the design portion of the competition. Allison Kopf, the project manager for the 2009 solar house, reflects on her experience with past competitions: "Perhaps the most exciting aspect of the event is the fact that it's educating, motivating and inspiring." Allison continues on by saying that this year they're going for a "very radical design," including huge open windows to achieve greater indoor-outdoor connection. Another innovation to look for is an integrated control system to create a "smart house," where the owner will be able to control the house with their phone. Allison considers this the best experience she has had at SCU and enjoys seeing how it "allows students from different ages, majors, universities, and even countries to collaborate with one major goal: to change the world."

Swig Sustainability Projects

Swig's seventh floor is best known as the sustainabilitly floor because all the upperclassmen living there research and complete a project that will help sustain the environment. One student, sophomore Richard Jaramillo (pictured above), decided to start a compost project. The pile resides in his dorm room and surprisingly does not smell! The worms in his project feed off of any type of food besides citrus foods. Once they finish the food on the lower layer, they migrate up, leaving behind their body casting. This worm casting is what Jaramillo harnests as fertilizer. This year's students, led by Prof. John Farnsworth and Stacy Cavanagh, are working on sustainability projects such as Green Access for Businesses, a Computer Lab Energy Standard, Compost in Kitchens, Sustainable Dorming, and Recycled Water in Campus Bathrooms.

STUDENT WORKS

Imagine & Create

Ceramics is the ultimate place to mold a work of art that represents your style. The eighteen students taking lower division Ceramics 63 had three projects and upper division Ceramics 163 students had four projects to complete in this fall quarter. For one project, students cut up a sphere, a cylinder and a box, and combined the pieces into one abstract piece. The second project required them to take an object from real life and enlarge it. The last project was to create a themed miniature house. The upper division students had an additional project, where they each created a tribal mask. These projects all require dedication and patience because each piece must be fired once, glazed, and then fired a second time. "Ceramics is a really fun class because you can bring your personality into your pieces," says Ali Reimer, a student in Ceramics 63, "It was difficult to find the time outside of class to complete the projects, but in the end it was worth it."

STUDY ABROAD

Education through Cultural Immersion

Part of the Santa Clara experience for many students involves packing up their things and heading halfway around the globe to learn about and experience life in a completely different culture than their own. The majority of students at Santa Clara spend fall quarter of thier Junior year abroad, experiencing something they will remember forever.

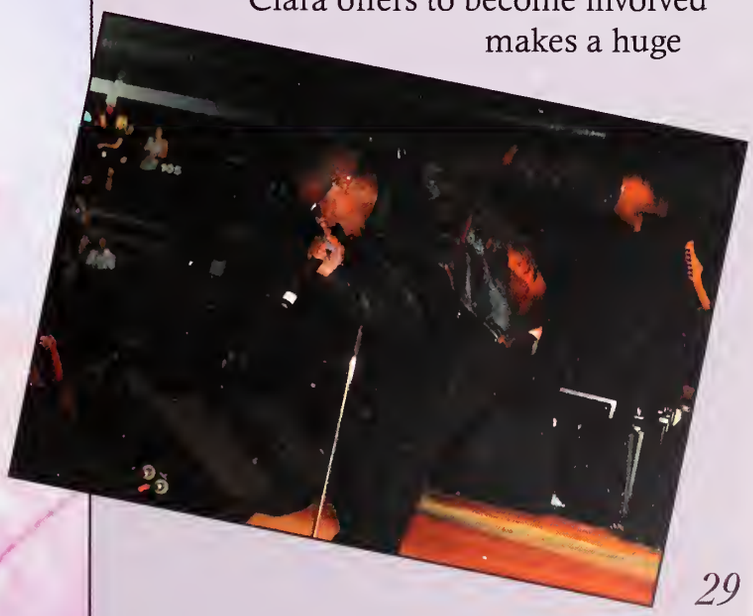
AND ORGANIZATIONS

A college experience involves more than just academics. The social aspect of campus could make or break ones experience at school. Santa Clara University provides many ways for students to get involved both on and off campus. There are tons of clubs in every field of interest available for students to join; if a club doesn't exist, students can make one! Intramural sports, club sports, service programs and social events are offered for students as well. In order for incoming freshmen and returning sophomores who live in the dorms to feel involved, each dorm has an RLC—a program designed to provide even more ways for residents to get involved without having to wander far from the dorms. Many Chartered Student Organzation's (CSO's) such as The Santa Clara [the newspaper], KSCU [the radio station], and The Redwood [the yearbook] provide services for the campus that every student can enjoy. Having as many opportunities as Santa Clara offers to become involved makes a huge



Thanksgiving 2008 Mexico Immersion

SERVICE

Thanksgiving break is a great time to spend with family and friends after a busy first quarter. However, about ninety students, alumni and faculty, graciously decided to go on an immersion trip to Tijuana, Mexico from Friday, November 21st to Tuesday, November 25th, to build basic houses for underprivileged, yet very deserving families who owned property. Partnered with Amor Ministries, the housing assignments were to create four basic houses with four rooms from 2 by 4 pieces of wood, stucco walls, 2 doors and a few windows. One of the major components of this program is that it is an immersion trip. Following the idea of unity between the Mexican families and SCU students, the families could be found helping out on the construction site, and the SCU group strove to live and work as the families do. Therefore, throughout this entire process, no power tools were used in an effort to build a house as they would have built it. In addition, the group lived off of basic foods: oatmeal and cereals for breakfast, PB&J sandwiches for lunch, and canned soup for dinner. These limitations made the students realize their dependence on available resources. Diana Pillsbury, a student who attended this immersion trip, relates to this in saying, "If something breaks or if there is a disaster when you are working with limited supplies, you feel a moment of hopelessness because you don't have any resources to help you. Then, you think of what it would be like to live like that every day." After all the hard work is completed, there is a key ceremony. Each person who helped build the house touches the key to their heart and then passes it on. It circles around the entire group and then finally lands in the hands of the owners. This ceremony, which also includes gifts for the family and a picture of the SCU group, creates a nice closing to the house-building process.

Teatro Catalina

Extracurriculars, such as dance and theatre, are important factors for all communities. They create an environment where kids can express themselves with movement and voice. This past summer, Santa Clara's Teatro Catalina, founded by Katie Fitzgerald, traveled to Villa Catalina in Chinandega, Nicaragua, in cooperation with Amigos for Christ. "Our goal is to establish a sustainable arts initiative for the youth of the village and a tangible connection between the Nicaraguan community and the community of Santa Clara University," says Joey Brennan, one of the leaders of this club. The students who attended this immersion trip built the stage from the bottom up with only the tools in their hands. The students first dug up the ground and then found round river rocks by the water. Then they arranged the chosen rocks in the border of the frame with cement between them. Once the dirt and cement were added to the center, the team carefully smoothed out the top surface, making it level. To add to the aesthetics, a layer of red paint filled the stage and a floor design was created with repetitive stamp imprints. The entire construction process may seem tedious, but the Nicaraguan children livened up the environment with their presence and willingness to help in any way. In the end, the project would not be complete without a performance by the children in both song and dance. With a blue and green "Teatro Catalina" sign in the back of the stage and an audience filling up the concrete stands, the community started to see the possibilities of a great performing arts program.

RLC

Residential Learning Communities

Residential Learning Communities are a place to call home. They extend beyond the typical dorm life one would expect, but you not only make friends from those you live with, you create a family. One of the best feelings in the world is walking down the residence hall after after a stressful day of classes to find smiling faces to greet you at every dorm room you pass. RLCs provide just what every college student needs...a home away from home.

ALPHA

Graham

Spotlighting: Saturnalia

At the beginning of a quarter, there is no better way to get back into the swing of things than with a week long celebration! Alpha, for instance, kicks off the quarter with Saturnalia - an event reminiscent of an old Roman festival full of role reversals, competitions, and festivities. There are three main competitions between the buildings: the chariot race, the gladiatorial battle, and the "hook-up." Residents also participate in a "lord/lady of misrule" contest where they try their hardest to perform silly or challenging tasks in order to win points. At the end of the week, once all the contests and competitions are over, one last festivity remains: a feast! This isn't just any feast, it is one full of togas and food, with entertainment provided by the lord/lady of misrule. Residents full participation in this event makes for a week of great entertainment, fun, and confusion of those passer-bys not involved.

Spotlighting: Communitas

"Communitas-(Latin): 1) joint possession or use, participation, partnership, sharing; 2) social relationship, fellowship, social ties, organized society; 3) kinship; 4) obligingness." (Oxford Latin Dictionary). Communitas' themes are individualism, community and citizenship. It encourages students to get involved and shape its theme and activites. It strives to be a place where "everyone knows your name," to provide a place like home for its residents as well as promote community awareness. Communitas works with and supports everyone who wants to help or needs support, no matter who they want to help or what their passions are. Communitas' motto is "Local action with compassion," supporting the idea that lending a helping hand is an opportunity to grow as a person. Throughout the year, Communitas puts on various programs and activities, including a Communitas Olympics, Dorm/Formal and Urban Plunges.

Spotlighting: Immersion Trips

Every Thanksgiving and Christmas break for the past years, Xavier has sponsored Mexico Immersion trips. A group of students, faculty, staff and alumni have traveled to Mexico to build houses and support the people. Father Reites, former Faculty Director of Xavier, organized the first immersion trip in December of 2002. "My idea was to give some substance to Xavier RLC's vision of global solidarity," Father Reites says. "Going to Mexico, building houses with the simple tools used by the poor, living simply, as the very poor do with no running water or electricity, using outhouses, working very hard, trying to connect with the Mexican families to learn from them, was all part of living and feeling in solidarity with the poor." As the years have passed, Father Reites has turned over the responsibilities of organizing the trips to students and has become their mentor. This year's Thanksgiving immersion trip had 108 people who built four houses for needy families in northern Baja. So far, Xavier has sponsored 13 trips, greatly helping many families in need.

DA VINCI

Casa Italiana

Spotlighting: da Vinci Day

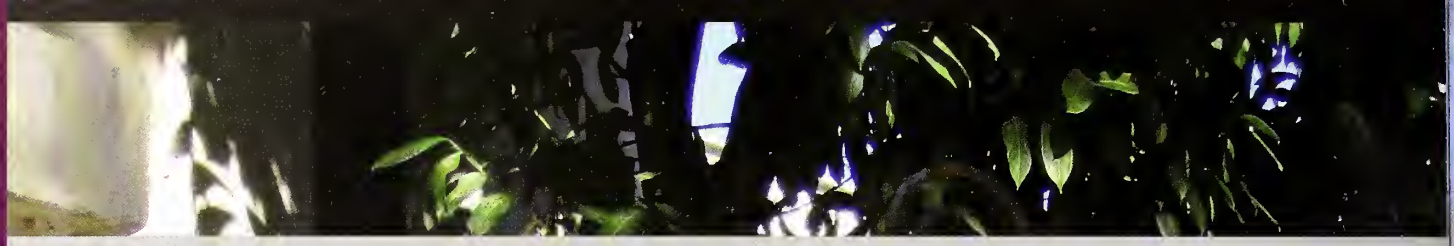
As a new freshman, many might find it difficult to meet people. Da Vinci however, gives people an easy and fun way to get to know fellow community members. The first Saturday of the year, da Vinci puts on da Vinci day – a day full of Italian-themed activities! The CF and Leadership team organize activities such as Pin the Appendage on the Vitruvian Man, Gondola decorating and racing, Bocce Ball Tournaments, cooking contests, pizza dough tosses and many more. Each floor competes against one another for a top (Italian themed) prize. "It was great for everyone to meet each other and kick off the school year," says CF Kenny Curry. A lot of residents come out to support this, the biggest event of the year for da Vinci. Activities start around noon and last as late as six, allowing plenty of time for all activities as well as introductions. CF Michelle Pesce comments, "This year we had a tremendous success in floor pride. Each floor donned bandanas according to their ninja-turtle themed floor." Floor pride adds to the whole community experience, allowing neighbors to form a bond that will hopefully last throughout their years at SCU.

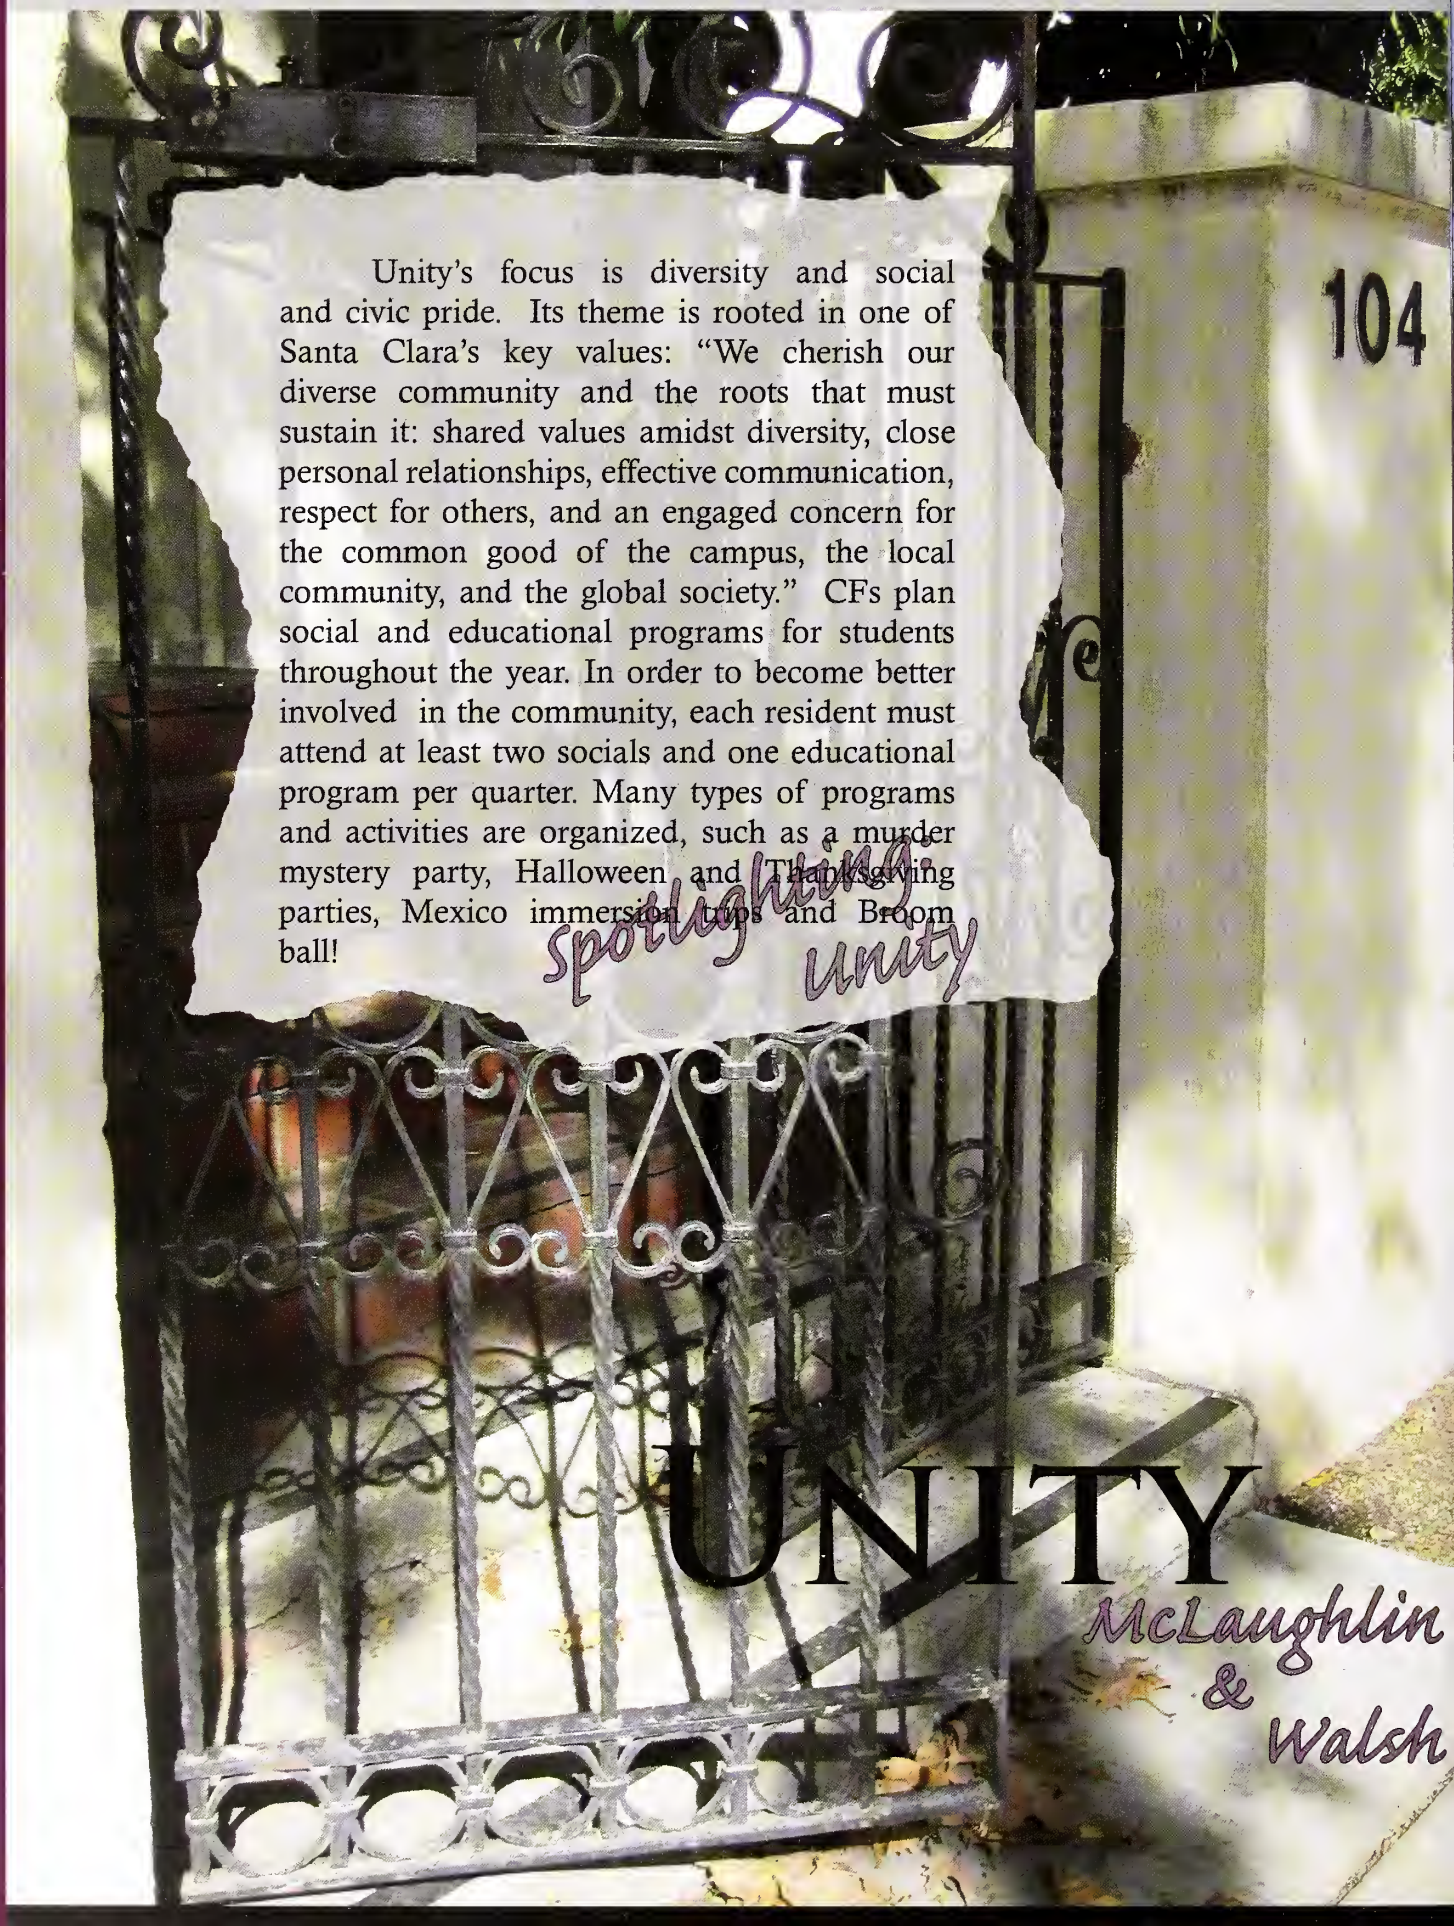
LOYOLA

Sobrato

Spotlighting: Loyola Liturgies

Loyola, housed in Sobrato, was founded in 2001. Its theme is faith and justice. Before September of 2003, Loyola was a two-year, freshman/sophomore Residential Learning Community and Sobrato was a two-year, Junior/Senior Residential Learning Community. With the help of a grant from the Ignatian Center, the two were combined into what they are today. Every Tuesday at 10 pm, Loyola holds their weekly "Loyola Liturgies," open to all residents and students on campus. These liturgies, a staple program to the community, were founded by Anthony Ramos, the Resident Director for the Residential Learning Community. Open to those of all faiths, the liturgies provide a place for students to share in various faith practices, meditations and similar forms of spiritual expression.





Unity's focus is diversity and social and civic pride. Its theme is rooted in one of Santa Clara's key values: "We cherish our diverse community and the roots that must sustain it: shared values amidst diversity, close personal relationships, effective communication, respect for others, and an engaged concern for the common good of the campus, the local community, and the global society." CFs plan social and educational programs for students throughout the year. In order to become better involved in the community, each resident must attend at least two socials and one educational program per quarter. Many types of programs and activities are organized, such as a murder mystery party, Halloween and Thanksgiving parties, Mexico immersion trips and Broom ball!

Nobili and Saint Clare

"I think Nobili and St. Clare were just an afterthought sometimes. Since they were a later addition and they house upperclassmen, perhaps the administration did not think it necessary to place them in Residential Learning Communities."

~ Ashley Batz, Nobili CF

Though they have no RLC to call home, Nobili and St. Clare are loved just the same.

So what are the perks to living in two of the newest additions to our campus? Well, since Nobili used to be the old Jesuit housing and St.Clare used to be a motel, you are promised a very spacious room with your very own bathroom! Also, St. Clare offers its own pool and Nobili has large common rooms and kitchens.

On top of that, since they mainly host upperclassmen, you are exempt from the clatter of freshmen and the cries of "Wake Up Swig!" at 3am.

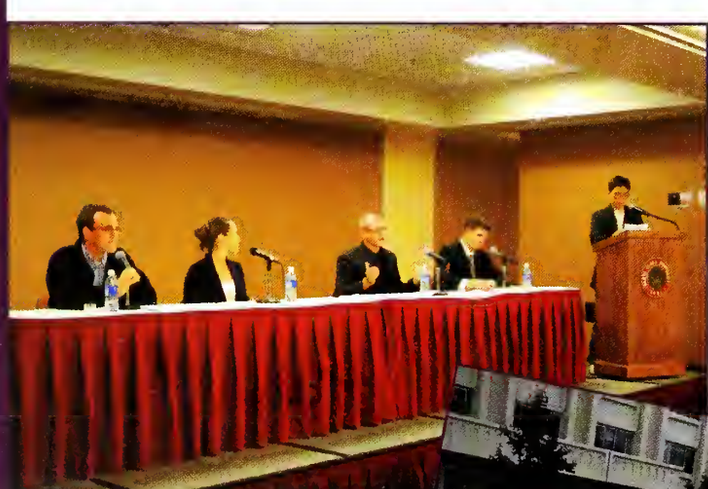
SPOTLIGHT ON...

Democratic and Republican Clubs



The particularly historical national election this fall was met with great involvement and excitement from the Democratic and Republican Clubs. Each club encouraged students not only to research and support their own candidates, but also came together to recruit voters in general. Both clubs participated in the election frenzy by hanging profiles of their candidates around school, holding debates, tabling to register their peers to vote, and promoting the "Rock the Vote Carnival". With record numbers of young voters, most of whom had never voted in a presidential election before, clubs were in full swing, working hard to insure their candidates were well known on campus, that students were informed about the issues at stake, and that people were registered to vote for November 4th!

Associated Students

Established in 1912, the Associated Students of Santa Clara are the elected student body officials who work with the administration to improve and better the Santa Clara community by representing their fellow students' needs and concerns, and advocating for them. Divided into four branches: executive, judicial, legislative, and student involvement, AS's mission statement is "to facilitate change and provide active outreach to the student body and cohesiveness with university administration." AS, lead by President Rachel Manfre and Vice President Umang Desai, encourages student involvement and leadership by facilitating and working with the other chartered student organizations and university committees and supporting active engagement and school spirit within the Santa Clara Community.

Members of the AS senate sport their colors at a sentate meeting on "tie-dye day."

"I have been privileged to be part of the executive board for the last two years, and as a result I have met many important and influential individuals in our Santa Clara community from staff to board members and donating alumni. These opportunities are invaluable because I get to advocate for students"

The Santa Clara Community Action Program

Are you looking for a way to grow in Santa Clara's "three Cs:" competence, conscience, and compassion? SCAPP, the Santa Clara Community Action Program, is the place to go. The SCAPP program gives students the opportunity to participate in service, community based learning, advocacy, activism, and leadership. Members of this program become a part of a community that gives back to others, as well as enriches their education, drawing attention to issues of social justice and challenging them to make a difference in the wold around them.

"We are a group of students dedicated to learning and serving others, and to exploring what a Santa Clara education is at its deepest level : learning to become men and women for others. Through immersion into our surrounding communities, or, just hanging out on the couches in downstairs Benson, SCAPP provides a much needed niche in the life of a Santa Clara student; it is a haven of respect, acceptance, a challenge to reach out to others, and a calling to do something more."

THE REDWOOD

Santa Clara's Yearbook

Somehow in a whirl of office hours, photo sessions, and deadlines, a yearbook is created and memories are documented for a lifetime. In this year's The Redwood yearbook, the staff developed a theme of "Returning to Our Roots," not only documenting the 2008-2009 school year but also highlighting what it is that makes Santa Clara such a special place to learn, live, and grow. Staff members spent countless hours taking pictures, designing pages, meeting, covering events, and interviewing the students of SCU to put together the 105th volume of The Redwood . By "returning to our roots" we reveal the core values that are at the heart of the Santa Clara tradition, while leaving our own mark and sharing our experiences in this school year.

History in the Making

This year, the Multicultural Center (MCC) is also welcoming the Japanese Student Association (JSA) into its home as its tenth club. "We wanted to increase awareness of Japanese culture on campus while at the same time adding to the diversity of the MCC. So far, it has been a great experience for JSA. We have received a lot of support from the MCC and look forward to a great year," says Ryan Hirata '10, co-chair of JSA. As JSA goes into its third year since its establishment, the club now has its weekly meetings in Shapell Lounge, a space reserved in the afternoons for the MCC club meetings. Together, the clubs support each other. As part of the MCC, each club conducts a cultural show and hosts other events, like cultural dinners, movie nights, karaoke, and more.

> ~Ryan Hirata '10, Co-chair of JSA

Assistant Director, Lauren Tojo '09 says, "One of my goals for this year is to help promote more positive awareness of the Multicultural Center so all students can learn about the diversity that exists here on our campus." To do so, the Multicultural Center started the year with an open house to welcome freshman and anyone else on campus. In November, the clubs come together for Dia de los Muertos, showing the different ways that each culture celebrates death. In the spring, the MCC holds its largest event, Global Village, a day of cultural celebration through food, dances, games, and music. At the end of the year, MCCBeary's is held to celebrate the achievements of the year. As for the main goal of the director, Alicia Nguyen '09 says, "When I look back at this year, it is not how many meetings or how many events we had that determines success. If I am able to change the perspective of at least one person, I would call the year a success."

Santa Clara University has been home to the Activities Programming Board since 1994 when two different programming organizations merged into one. APB organizes and holds various events, both large and small, for our campus community every year. This ten member staff annually arranges big concerts with bands such as Sum 41, Death Cab for Cutie, Michael Franti and Lupe Fiasco. They have also held events such as SCU Idol and The Art of Kissing. APB provides alternative activites for students to participate in, allowing them a way to become more involved in the Santa Clara community as well as giving students the opportunity to experience all that the community has to offer.

THE SANTA CLARA

Bringing You Your Campus News

Every Thursday, a new edition of The Santa Clara can be found, stacked in piles around campus. Each week, a staff of approxomately forty write about campus and global events. Ideas for articles come from both freelance and staff writers, editors and suggestions or pitches from students. Since its beginning in 1922, The Santa Clara has won many awards, including Best Editorial, and Best In-Depth Reporting. Laura Beck, a sophomore copy editor on staff says, "The atmosphere in the newsroom makes me feel like I am a part of something really unique. There are people flipping through AP Style books, talking about page layouts and photo compositions, and perfecting articles all around in pursuit of a great issue. I get this fantastic feeling of accomplishment every Thursday when I see people reading the final product of all that hard work and those long hours in the newsroom."

The Underground Sound

KSCU is Santa Clara University's student-run radio station. Located in the basement of Swig, this radio station drifts away from mainstream music, instead offering a mix of indie rock and "underground sound." To become a DJ, a student must first show his or her commitment by completing multiple album reviews. Then the student is paired with a current DJ to shadow a show and to have an opportunity to practice his or her skills. With over 40 DJs, this radio station provides the Santa Clara Community with a diverse collection of albums. The top three albums on October 12, 2008 were Lightbulbs by Fujiya and Miyagi, Touch Too Much/Hold On Remixes by Hot Chip, and Nick And Norah's Infinite Playlist by Various Artists from the Soundtrack.

So many choices

Santa Clara University offers numerous clubs reaching from academics to common interests of the student body. There are currently over 80 different choices for students to make.

Teatro Catalina is a club designed to help sustain a theater project in Nicaragua. The club not only helps support the village through the arts, it also establishes a place for constant immersion trips for the whole student body to enjoy.

Another one of the clubs on campus is Delta Sigma Pi. Delta Sigma Pi is one of the two business fraternities practicing at the University. This frat helps create networks between students and other companies. Their goal is to obtain valuable professional experience while working closely with others to achieve real-world results without real-world penalties.

Pre-Health Club seeks to help students within the medical or graduate process while providing guidance, support and health related information in a safe and intellectual environment.

English Club provides academic, social, and philanthropic events to help support the English majors and minors of Santa Clara University. Events range from Pizza with the Profs to movie nights and Poetry slams, read-a-thons, and poetry readings.

Another club on campus is the American Society of Civil Engineers. They are a close-knit group who spends countless hours together working on homework and studying. One of the events early in the fall quarter was the Granite Construction Company Collegiate Challenge (pictured above). Other events that ASCE participates in are a steel bridge competition, Concrete Canoe and field trips from Quarries to the Bay Bridge.

Salsa Clara meets once a week to teach students how to dance. The club's goal is to reach out to the communities around Santa Clara University through showcasing the culture and talent of SCU students.

As society moves towards saving the environment, so does Santa Clara's Green Club. Through different activities from community building, campus advocacy, and field trips, Green Club hopes to bring the spirit and knowledge needed to confront the challenges students will face in coming decades.

Another club, Core Christian Fellowship, facilitates a Christ centered environment for students to grow in encouragement and love. Core holds weekly Bible Studies and outings for their members.

Santa Clara University is much more than just a university. It is a place for people to discover themselves and develop a firm base for thier future. We have musicians, directors, dancers, athletes, leaders and individuals among us. We spend our time getting to know the people as well as the area around us. It is impossible to graduate from Santa Clara without having used your flex money at the local frozen yogurt shop, Blondies, or one of the various restaurants surrounding campus. Each of these venues seems to come with its own sense of history. Henry's, for instance, a Mexican restaurant north of campus used to be an Irish pub! Smoke Eaters has changed its name so many times, and yet, everyone still knows it as University Chicken or Cluck U. No matter where you go, you're bound to see other Santa Clara students enjoying the local scene. Along with surrounding hangouts, SCU hosts many events dealing with current issues. For the 2008 Presidential Election, multiple events were held informing students on the views of each party in an effort to get as many people involved as possible. Events such as Capture the Flag and the Roommate Challenge help students living on campus can get involved and enjoy some fun times with fellow residents. No matter who you are, there are always places to go or things to do around campus.

Changing of the Guard

"Today I say to you that the challenges we face are real. They are serious and they are many. They will not be met easily or in a short span of time. But know this, America – they will be met. On this day, we gather because we have chosen hope over fear, unity of purpose over conflict and discord."
–From President Barack Obama's Inaugural Address

For the Santa Clara community, the return from winter break signified not only the start of a new year and a new quarter, but the start of a new chapter of our school's history, as we welcomed Fr. Engh as the 28th president of Santa Clara, and the start of a new chapter in our nation's history, as we recognized President-Elect Barack Obama as our 44th president of the United States. As students of Santa Clara and as U.S. citizens and/or citizens of the World, these events not only mark an end of an era, but give us hope for a more promising future.

As president, Fr. Engh looks forward to Santa Clara's continued excellence. His priorities will center on attracting diverse and academically gifted students, recruiting and retaining talented faculty, and fund-raising.

President Obama promises our nation change and reform, dealing most immediately with the economic crisis by promoting legislature to provide jobs and cut taxes for the unemployed and underpayed.

"Your passion energizes me, and I look forward to Santa Clara's continued excellence."
–Fr. Engh

On October 17th, Santa Clara students gathered to celebrate their right to cast their ballots and "Rock the Vote". Although the event was attended by students of different political influences, whose definite opinions were both expressed and challenged, the carnival served as a way to unite opposing parties for the purpose of inspiring a new generation of voters to exercise their privilege to vote. Games and fun activities (like the moon bounce!) provided a fun atmosphere that also helped soften party tensions.

"My top issue would be the economy and its present state right now and what the plans are to fix it. I feel that this is important for me because I am a graduating senior and looking for a job. If the economy is still weak, I may go to graduate school."
~Lauren~Ashly Tojo '09

"My top issue is education because it's crucial to the success of our nation. Voters are too short-sighted and not paying attention to the biggest crisis which is the problems with our education system.
~Reese Benjamin '09"

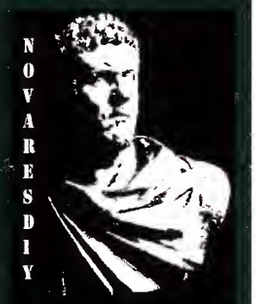
MAKING THE BAND

The Musically Inclined Students of SCU

Spotlight on...

Nova Res DIY (Nova Res is Latin for "new ideas" or "new things" and DIY means "Do It Yourself") is an organization dedicated to supporting the DIY music scene and promoting education in the Bay Area underground music scene in general. They do this by booking shows for independent and unsigned bands at SCU and promoting artforms like alt literature. "All our events are to raise money for our scholarship fund, which will hopefully help kids in any community to pay for college," says Denise Bennett of the group's mission. "Most of all, we hope that kids will stay active, do something with their time, set up a show, explore their city, pick up a book, play music, make art, write, and think critically about their lives."



...Nova Res D.I.Y.

The goal of the Department of Music, is to "provide an inspiring environment that engages all university students and ensures that music flourishes as an essential element in the university's intellectual, cultural, and experiential life." To help achieve this goal and enrich the program, they host over 100 musical events each year in the form of concerts, battle-of-the-band type events, workshops, master-classes and performance series. Every year the Music Department also invites numerous guest artists, lecturers, and scholars from related fields, whom provide the greater community with opportunities for enrichment.

The role of music in the Santa Clara Community goes beyond the classroom and department events, however, and there is a great musical influence here, both inside and outside the umbrella of those programs. Some student groups include a multitude of choirs, bands, and ensembles. Those students looking for the musical experience on campus have only to take their pick of performances like "Music at Noon, the faculty and student recitals, along with a plethora of other concerts and shows.

"The students in the department are phenomenal. Everybody is supportive, positive, and motivated. We know we aren't at Indiana University or San Francisco Conservatory, and we know that this means we need to work hard to compete. Nobody could do it alone, and when it comes to needing help (say forming an ensemble, needing a partner for a piece, or recording a project) students are always available to help out."
—Nick Benavides '10

Directly Above: A student band performs in the annual "Battle of the Bands" contest. Upper Left: Members of the a capella group Supertonic. Supertonic was founded in 2006 by a bunch of crazy students who wanted to be in a rock band but were too cheap to buy instruments. They sing mostly songs that are (or have been) in the Top 40 with a smattering of other material (if they think they can sell it). They're so fanatic about singing that they sing even the background parts, not just the melody or foreground.

Santa Clara University has a thriving Center of Performing Arts which presents numerous productions by the Department of Theatre (as well as the Dance and Music Departments). Students have the opportunity to perform, direct, choreograph, and provide design and technical support for these exciting works that are put on for the campus and local communities.

The theater season at Santa Clara usually includes four plays, three in the Mayer Theatre and one in the Fess Parker Studio Theatre. All of these are directed by faculty members. Students have the opportunity to be involved in all productions through acting, dance, dramaturgy, design, stage management, run crew, costume crew and construction, and various other areas. In addition to the department productions, there are student directed and/or choreographed shows throughout the academic year that rely heavily on student participation.

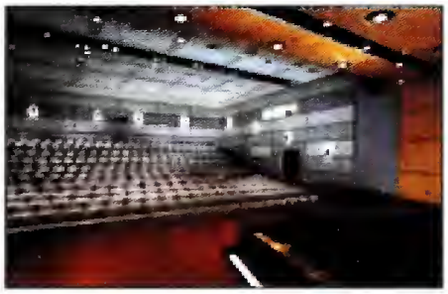
"With SCU's Theatre department, I've been lucky enough to be allowed to design three main-stage shows, which many undergrads at other schools would not get to do. These shows were some of the hardest designs I've ever had to work on, but they taught me more than years of classes and theories. And my faculty has been amazing enough to have my back in both our own shows, and my off-campus designs as well. The support structure here is great. This spring I'm working as a lighting / special effects intern with Cirque du Soleil (The internship is in lighting an special effects with Zumanity and Love). It lasts until I graduate this June, and after that, who knows?"-Matt John's '09

...An Amazing Theater Experience



BUT CAN YOU ACT?

SO YOU THINK YOU CAN DANCE?

Throughout the year the Santa Clara Department of Performing Arts produces two main stage dance productions where students have the opportunity to perform, choreograph, and design the program. This year's two major performances were the "Choreographer's Gallery" and "Images 2009"

Spotlight on...

Junior Kristen Ryder, a dance and English double major at Santa Clara, has been dancing since she was three and choreographing musicals and dance teams since she was fourteen. While at Santa Clara, she has not only preformed within the Santa Clara Performing Arts Program, but she has also continued to be involved outside the SCU community as a preformer and as an aerobics, Pilates, and dance instructor, choreographing for fashion shows and other events. This passion has lead her to starting her own dance company "two. step Event Choreography." "two.step Event Choreography is my newest venture in the dance and business world! It provides choreography and polished routines to groups for events such as weddings, bar/bat mitzvahs, sales meetings, birthday parties, etc.," says Kristen. "Dance is becoming a greater part of the fitness industry every year! I love sharing my passion for dance with those who have the same enthusiasm, and I have a great sense of pride in watching dancers grow in my classes. Whether you are a trained dancer or are just looking to exercise to great music, my classes are a workout for mind, body, and soul!"

Whale's tail found on the trip to Baja.

As New Core classes are slowly integrated, students still have many opportunities to enroll in fun classes and explore new majors added to the school. Many of the classes, ranging from communications to language classes, require aplias as part of the syllabus. This is chance for students to go out in the community and help others. The community service projects range from playing soccer with Hispanic Children to helping out in a nursing home. These help students to understand the social realities outside the classroom. Another interesting class is the Natural History of Baja taken along with Environmental Writing. These classes teach students about the natural history of Baja, which they will experience in a weeklong trip sea kayaking and studying local flora, fauna, and geology and marine ecology. Also, a new major added to the long list is Web-design engineering. This new major incorporates both graphics and computer language used to create websites seen everyday. Santa Clara has a variety of classes and majors that are hard to find at other universities.

Competence, Conscience, and Compassion

After several years of planning, the new core system is slowly being intergrated into the circulum. The new core creates a common starting ground for students. "Santa Clara's new core curriculum prepares students for professional excellence, responsible citizenship, and service to society, especially on behalf of those in greatest need. The new core provides the common learning that our students need to become citizens of competence, conscience, and compassion in a globalizing world. Emphasizing knowledge, habits of mind and heart, and engagement with the world, the core explores relationships among ideas and cultures; it encourages intentional choices that bring coherence to the undergraduate experience; and it develops students' commitments to intellectual inquiry, moral reflection, and active engagement."

HENRY'S

– Lord Johns Irish Coffee?

Benson food, trips to Santa Cruz, and all-you-can-eat Tuesday's at Stuft are all things that Santa Clara students should experience at least once before graduating. There are multiple things you could add to that list – Henry's being one of them. This authentic Mexican restaurant just across the street from the Alumni Science building has students always coming back for more, whether it's for the delicious super nachos, a classic bean and cheese burrito, or the massive Coronas handed out to all. On a busy weekend night, a line reaching from the counter to the door is a common occurrence, but is well worth the wait. On those busy nights, grabbing a booth the second someone stands up to leave is a battle of the swiftest. Henry's has had their liquor license revoked multiple times, but once they get it back, out come the 40s and limes. There also isn't a time when you won't hear "Chicken Quesadilla" repeatedly shouted in that authentic Mexican accent from behind the counter.

Henry's wasn't always Henry's though. Many used to know the place as Lord John's Inn, or LJ's. Up until 1993, students regularly enjoyed this "alternative student union." It was a "too-hot, too-loud, too-small room that almost every Santa Clara student could happily call home," wrote Michael Judge, class of '93. There are some things Michael Judge wanted to clear up before Lord John's disappeared. First, it "was a bar, not an inn. They did serve lunch – even though most students experienced ends with the clam chowder and veggie-dip served at happy hour. There was an upstairs, but it wasn't a seafood restaurant and most certainly not a brothel; it was just storage."

There are many memories linked to LJ's for former Santa Clara students, ones they'll probably nostalgically remember forever. Henry's still contains those memories. They are the base of new memories being formed by SCU students in the 21st century.

Both black and white photos were taken from the 1993 edition of The Redwood.

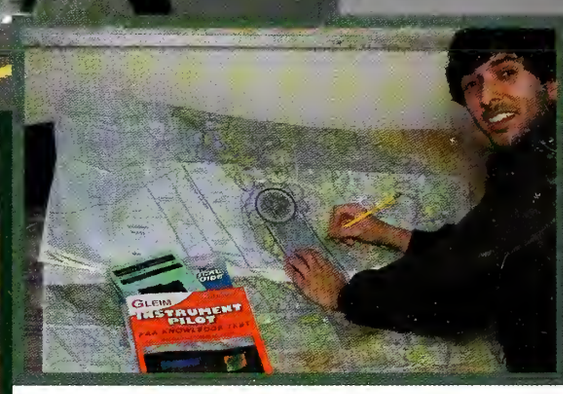
TRAILBLAZERS

Creating a Path of their Own

Osheen Davoudi



Osheen Davoudi started flying planes by himself when most 15-year-olds could only control animated replicas through video games. As a child, he found himself drawn to model planes instead of toy cars. This early interest sparked his dream to become an accomplished aviator and astronaut. Osheen says, "I finally earned my wings and received my private pilot's license a day before the start of school at Santa Clara, September 21, 2008, when I was 18." However, even though flying a plane can be a very exhilarating experience, staying on top of complex aircraft procedures and triple-checking emergency checklists and weather information before flight requires a lot of time, determination and effort. On top of the regular demands of a typical Santa Clara student and his other interests in stock trading, economics, tennis, and piano, Osheen admits, "On average, I probably spend about 18 hours or more on aviation related material per week." The heavy time commitment might discourage many from pursuing this hobby, but for Osheen, he "[loves] to constantly challenge [himself] with new tasks and improve upon [his] skills," and he says, "Flying keeps me on my toes." One of his favorite moments was his first cross-country solo, where he traveled from airport to airport for about three hours. The views included a foggy coast and the Sierras. He explains, "It was an incredible feeling to be in command of a little plane, all alone, about 7,000 feet up in the skies. I do remember being a little nervous though, because it was the first time that I didn't have my instructor there to watch over things." With such passion and commitment to flying planes, it's not surprising that Osheen will continue to follow his dreams of balancing a life of flying planes while working for a company like Lockheed Martin or Boeing. His current goal is to achieve his next rating for Instrument Flight Rules so he can fly through the clouds and further improve his aviation skills.

Michael Anthony Erkelens

"I'm capturing the every day world through new eyes, in a way that will surprise you."

Michael Anthony Erkelens Photography started about two years ago, but Michael Erkelens has been inspired to pursue his passion after seeing photos his grandpa took of him when he was only four years old. He says those photos "showed so much love, emotion and memories that [he] wanted to capture that through [his] eyes." As a freelance photographer, Michael is mostly hired for portrait shots, but also really enjoys shooting macro photos, which are photos taken from a close-up view. Starting at such a young age, he believes his youthful perspective and his dedication to "work as long as [his clients] are willing to take the most incredible shots possible" are some of the characteristics that make his photography unlike anyone else's. However, being only a 19-year-old has some obvious disadvantages as well. He admits that the hardest parts of setting up his own company were establishing his credibility and breaking into the market. Another difficult step Michael has to overcome is balancing his school work with his time-consuming photography projects, where he can spend up to 20-30 hours on just one assignment: "I get so passionately entrenched in it that I seem to forget the rest of the world and want to only do [photography], even when I have school work and other things. What I try to do is somehow get both done at the same time." As for the future, Michael hopes to expand his company and work full-time as a photographer doing cover stories or traveling for National Geographic. With this dream in mind, he is taking the appropriate steps to improve his marketing and management skills through the Leavey School of Business.

Urban Organic Arthur Kao & Joseph Baini

"Urban Organic is dedicated to creative designs inspired by our lives and experiences that truly brings together the Urban and Natural environments."

Arthur Kao and Joseph Baini combined their love for clothing, high fashion and street fashion into a stylistic T-shirt design company that definitely lives up to its name, Urban Organic. Started just under a year ago, this company is consistently developing its style as their personal tastes and interests change: "What makes us unique is not only our separate personalities but also our different perspectives on life. You can see this in our designs and will continue to see it in the future." As with any business, time committment is a big factor that must be addressed, especially since both company founders are full-time college students. They say, "The most difficult roadblack has been trying to organize time to meet and talk to figure out what we are doing next." What is especially admirable, however, is their continual interest to have their product designs represent who they are today. They have reflected on the past year and are striving to incorporate their growth in age, hobbies and style in their upcoming designs.

One way to get involved on campus is to participate in the various programs that RLCA puts on each year. The Roommate Challenge, a Halloween Decorating Contest, "Are you smarter than a 5th Grader," a Food Drive, Dodgeball and Battle of the Rockbands, are all events that RLCA has held campus wide. The competitions begin in your RLC, where the community councils are put in charge of holding mini-competitions within the RLC to decide who will represent in the competition between all the other RLCs across campus! Various prizes are given to those who win. Claire Wedekin and Emily Obranek, the roommates who won The Roommate Challenge, won a fully paid trip to Disneyland! Modern Perspectives won an Xbox 360 for the dorm by winning the Battle of the Rockbands! More than Just an Athlete

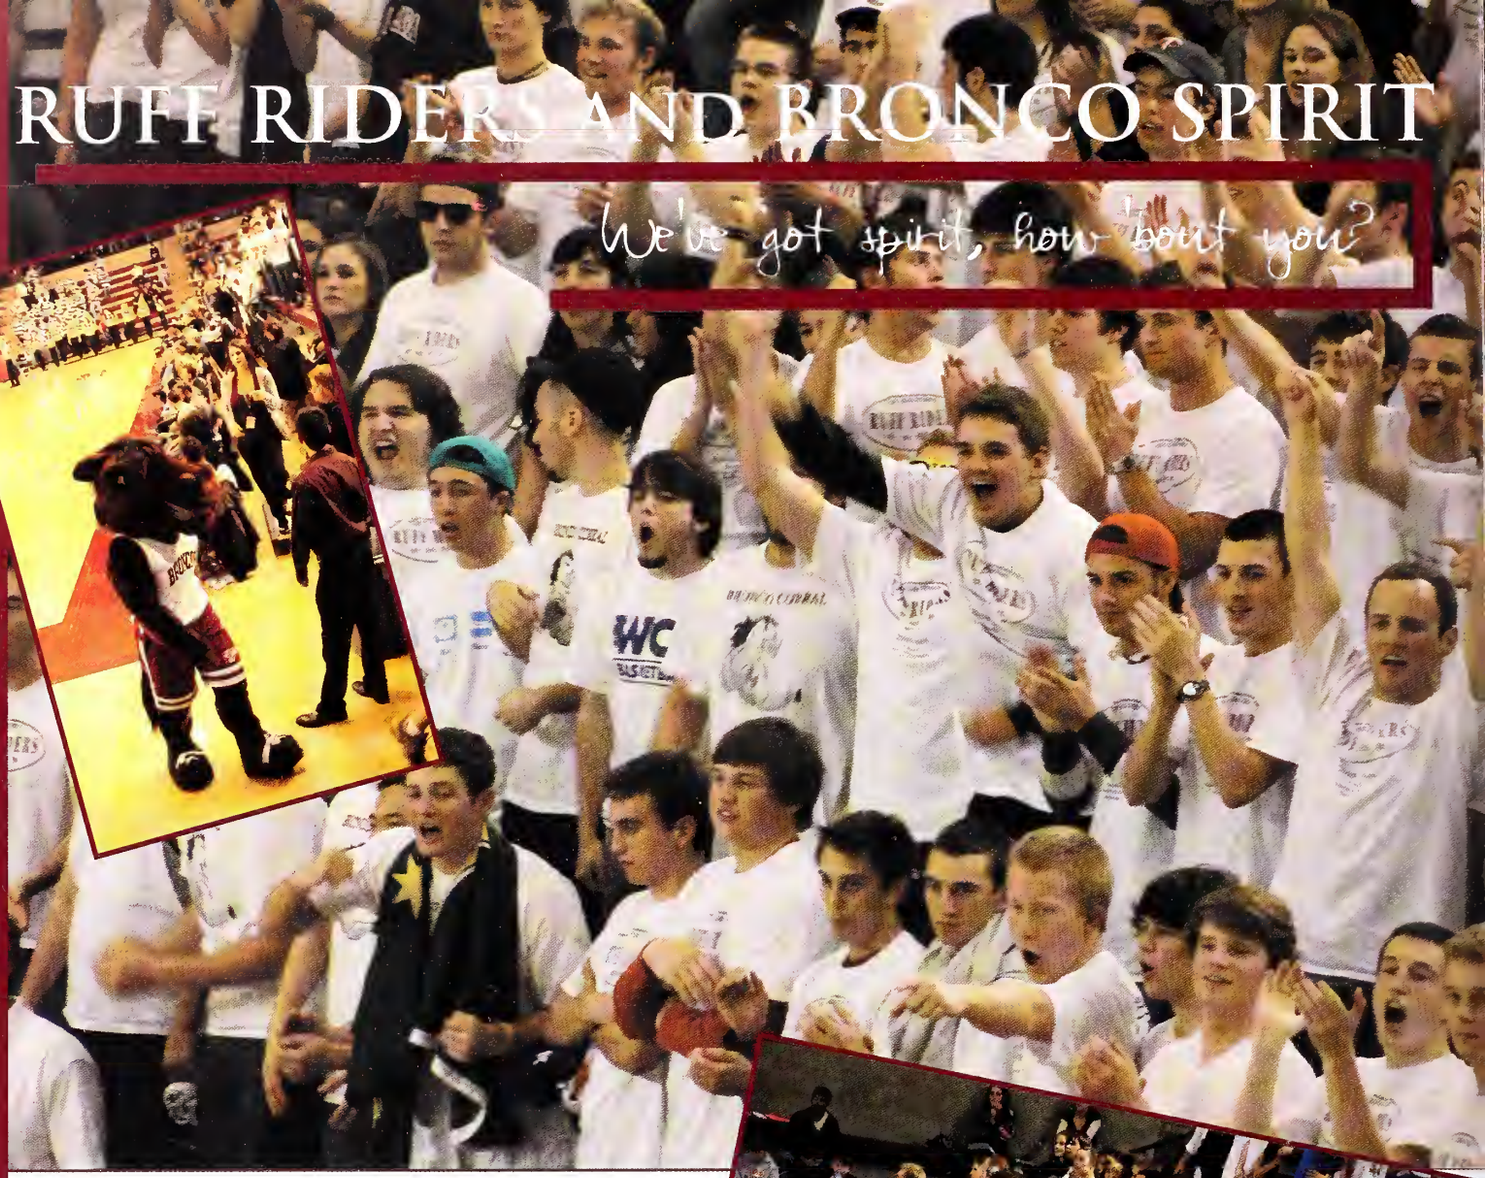
SPORTS

Santa Clara sports are an integral part of the university. With various NCAA sports teams including basketball, baseball, softball, track, crew, soccer, waterpolo, cross country, golf, volleyball and tennis, students always have a game or match where they can show their school spirit. Fans show up to events with flags, signs, and face or body paint to show support for their fellow Santa Clara Broncos. On many Saturday nights during winter quarter, the crowd in Leavey can be heard cheering on the Men's basketball team, just as the weekend morning whistles of waterpolo games can be heard at the pool next door. The sports here are not merely limited to NCAA athletes, however. SCU has multiple club teams for both men and women to participate in, as well as intramurals for those who want to have fun but not dedicate a huge amount of time to the sport. Regardless of skill or level of commitment, there is a sport out there waiting for everyone.

RUFF RIDERS AND BRONCO SPIRIT

We've got spirit, how 'bout you?



The largest student organization on campus, the Ruff Riders, Santa Clara's official student booster club, boasts more than 3,800 members and counting.

The reason for such active student involvement? Students who join the Ruff Riders not only receive free admission to all SCU regular season home games, but also receive free shirts and enjoy other exclusive offers.

Now in its tenth year, the students-only club continues to serve students and support athletes by, "Increasing student spirit on campus and at all Bronco athletic events; creating a fun exciting and positive atmosphere for club members and all Bronco fans that will solidify home court/ field advantage; providing an excellent social opportunity to meet tons of new people through an interest in athletics; and finally by serving as ambassadors of Santa Clara University by acting with integrity and sportsmanship."

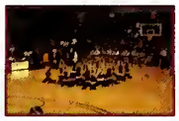
Oh! hold high those standards
As we go into the game.

Chorus: Varsity fight for Santa Clara
Banners of red and white on high
No matter how great your foe men,
Let our motto be "to do or die."
Rah! Rah!...

...Varsity team, We are cheering for you
Our gallant heroes, sturdy, staunch and true
Remember the right and might of Red and White
When Santa Clara warriors fight,
For Victory, and our dear old S.C.U.

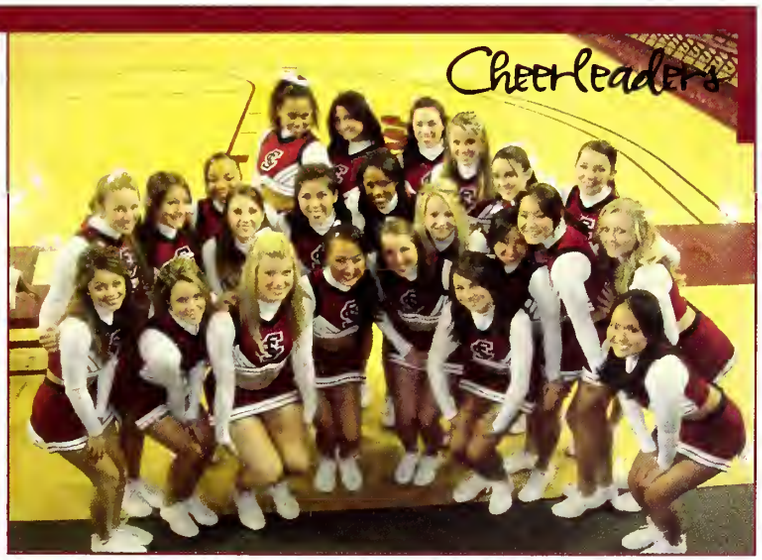
Then U. fight! fight! for the Alma Mater we love,
oh fight! fight! and strength shall come from above,
We now acclaim your fame,
Rah! Rah! Rah!

"Getting to dance and become friends with such a great group of girls has been so fun over the years, and I will always remember it as a great part of my experience here at SCU."
~Adrienne Katz SR



"The Bronco Band has made tremendous progress since its beginnings just a few years ago. It's awesome to pump up school spirit at games. I love it when the crowd gets into our music—the rowdier the better."
~Kelly O'Donnell SR

"Cheering for Santa Clara for four years has not only been an honor, but a privilege. The girls are amazing and the camaraderie that strengthens with every year creates a sister-like bond that I will cherish for years to come. When looking back on my experience, the countless hours of hard work are all well worth it because in exchange, I have countless memories and lasting friendships."
~Kaci Yano SR



Down to the Last Minute

Mens Basketball

Standing on the court, the band plays the fight song, and adrenaline rushes through the five players who take the floor. It is game time. Each player has practiced the fundamentals a million times and played in thousands of different situations and games. These skills are apart of them, engraved in their brains. Each team member has his own job and place on the court. From shooting guard to post, the Santa Clara University Men's Basketball team is skilled in every position. Their talent has paid off and shined through in the toughest times. During the Cable Car Classic championship game, the team pulled through in over time, against the University Texas El Paso, winning 89 to 88. Freshman, James Rahon explains, "It was really fun playing in that type of environment, especially because it was for the championship." With all the talent on the court, their season is looking bright.

"Play Hard
Play smart.
Play Together."

—Coach Mountain

Santa Clara University's women's basketball team has hit the ground running with the 2008-2009 season. Though the season has been rocky at times, the team has worked hard together and pulled out on top. Freshman Lauren Orlando said, "Our season is a rollercoaster so far. Every conference game has been a close one, having our ups and downs. Our conference is a great conference this year, each game has come down to either where team could win; it is just a matter of who wants it more." The team is like a family. They have been training and bonding since the summer. This team can be seen together off and on the court. Freshman Lauren Orlando's inspiration comes from head Coach Mountain. She always encourages the team, telling them, "Whether we win or lose, we are still a team. A team we are." No matter how the season goes for the girls, they have the memories they have created together.

Tommy Medica

When watching an intense sports match on the television, most will just enjoy the competition between the teams and the energy projected from other audience members. However, wise players, like Tommy Medica will also examine the teams' positive and negative aspects. Furthermore, they will cleverly apply them to their life. Tommy Medica explains his uplifting discovery: "Watching Fresno State win the College World Series last year shows that any team has a chance to win. Nobody is out. That is the great thing about baseball. If you have the right chemistry with your team and you play good, solid baseball, anybody can win on any day." Through the many games this season, Medica kept that same positive attitude no matter what the outcome. It shows atheletes how much of an effect a leisure activity can have on improving the attitude of competition between rivals. His commitment definitely showed in his performance as he and Thain Simon were named to both the 2009 Louisville Slugger Preseason All-American teams and 2009 RecruitingCloser.com Preseason All-American teams in January 2009.

"Baseball has taught me several lessons in life. One is commitment. When I commit myself to something, usually I get it done in the correct way in a good amount of time. Another is time management. I've really learned how to manage my time between classes and baseball—to excel at both."
—Nate Garcia

"Softball has pushed me to be the best that I can be in everything I do. Whether it is in school, work or sports. I work hard on the field and it carries over to every aspect of my life. ~Noelani Ho'opi'i"

Teamwork is the key factor to winning almost any sports game. Getting to know your teammates will not only determine which team will have the advantage, but it will also create a comfortable, supporting camaraderie during both victories and defeats. Noelani Ho'opi'i recalls a specific team-bonding experience: "My memorable moment of this year would have to be our sand castle competition. Although we were not on the softball field, we were still extremely competitive. We were in four separate groups and had other beach go-ers judge which sand castle was the best because we absolutely had to have a winner. Not only was it a bonding experience for the team to compete and work with each other, but also a time to come together off the field and spend quality time with one another."

"I wish people would understand that track and cross country are not interchangeable. Track happens on a track and includes sprints, jumps, hurdle and long distance. Cross country happens in the mountains."
~Joanna Gistand SR

"The track season is very young, so I can't really single out a favorite memory. It's just been awesome to get out there and run well with the guys. We've been putting together some great workouts already doing intervals at the Rose Garden, and that's a great sign for how early it is in the season."

LIFE IN THE FAST LANE

Men's and Women's Track

Since their transition from a club sport o a Division 1 program in 2005, the Santa Clara Men's and Women's track teams have continued to progress and achieve their goals n the last few years. Under the guidance of head coach Tom Service, the runners describe heir track experience, though mentally and physically challenging, as an opportunity o take part in a great team support system as well as run individually for their school. This year, goals for the Men's Team include "setting new school records and having more guys qualify for regionals," says senior Brian Fisher.

According to senior runner Noelle Lopez, the women's team will be focusing on "having as many people as possible PR set personal records), introducing freshmen o longer distances on the track, and having qualifiers for big track meets like Stanford nvite or maybe even NCAA Regionals. With our new sprint coach this year, we're looking forward to some great sprint distance PRs as well."

Day after day, the 22 members of the men's crew team practice together, eat together and bond as a team. For the Fall Quarter they head to the Redwood Shores, rather than the normal boathouse at Lexington because water levels are too low. They spend their morning practices on the water, while afternoon practices are on land where they work on cross training activities such as running, ergs, or stairs. Though it may seem like a lot of work waking up early, it is all worth it for Varsity Captain Brendon Bula. He said, "Waking up early in the mornings is worth it. I get used to it very fast and don't mind waking up early as long as I can plan my time appropriatly to get all my stuff done." Bula has high hopes for his young crew team. He has put together some of the fastest boats Santa Clara has seen in the water this spring.

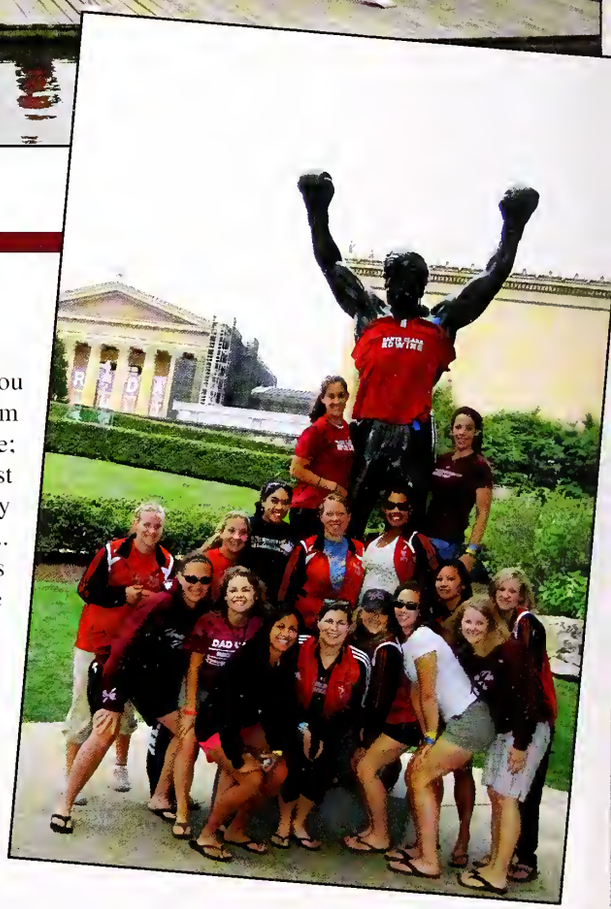
Women's Crew



The sound of your alarm fills your dorm room. The sun has not risen yet, but you slowly roll out of bed as the clock flashes 5:00 am. You think to yourself, "why am I doing this, it is too early in the morning to be waking up." But you are not alone; women across campus are waking up just like you for crew practice. Practices last a couple hours each morning and can be very tiring. For Christine Szelong, early morning practices are no longer bothersome. She rows because, "of my teammates... and I can't see myself doing anything else. It's one of the most amazing experiences ever and honestly, we're all addicted to it. [Rowing] is a sport that bases itself on one motion- the stroke, repeated over and over, but takes years to perfect. It's one simple movement with a thousand intricate pieces. It's being in a boat knowing that there are seven other people in it who have committed themselves to giving everything they have." This season has been different for the team. During the summer the reservoir Lexington, where they normally practice was drained and has not filled up enough to row in. They practice in Levy for three hours a day working on the one intricate movement. After their practice the team eats breakfast together. The girls have not raced yet this season because they have been unable to get on the water, but they are ready for what is about to come their way.

Brandon was definitely an asset to the team, earning All-Freshman team and honorable mention accolades. He also tied for first on the team in assists and scored his first collegiate goal this season. Leave Everything on the Field

" I'm leaving this team with 'no regrets' and that's really important to me. —Megan McCray "

Even though the Women's soccer team faced a tough season, especially with a few number of seniors, the team effort throughout all the games created a memorable experience for many. One senior, Megan McCray, served as the team's primary goal keeper and was a strong force on the defensive end. One of her favorite memories was the ESPN-U televised battle against second-ranked UCLA on September 25th. "Everyone on our team worked hard for each other and left everything out there on the field," Megan says, reflecting on the double overtime game that ended in a scoreless tie. Working through a serious nose injury caused by an opponent's kick in the second half, Megan definitely gave it her all, showing great dedication and endurance until the final whistle blew. Pondering over the season in general, Megan comments, "We struggled a lot this year due to a number of factors, including injured key players: Jordan Angeli, Amanda Poach and Kiki Bosio, but mainly this year taught me the importance of playing every game like it is your last." Even though she is graduating this year, Megan leaves an outstanding legacy with three shutouts and 62 saves, along with the title of All-WCC Honorable Mention honoree.

Men's and Women's Golf

Golf does not attract the same number of spectators the other sports at Santa Clara University can, but the team works just as hard as the others. Both the men and women practice everyday with similar activities that focus on team putting drills, bunker drills, personal range, and short game. They tee off at least once a week. The amount of hours they put into practicing each day shows their dedication. The constant practices and dedication has paid off. For the first time in the history of the Santa Clara University Women's Golf program, the team broke the ranking of 100th in tournaments after the fall season. They ended the fall season in 95th place.

This fall the Men's golf team traveled to Oahu to play in a five-day tournament at Turtle Bay. There the team finished in the middle of the group, while Jimmy Cacho led the team individually. Captain, Jonathan Keane said, "Golf allows me the chance to compete in an arena where you rely on no one but yourself. It's a very mental game, but there is also an athletic side that many people do not realize exists. Tiger Woods has elevated the game in recent years and created more attention and prize money for professional golfers. The dream of becoming a top professional inspires me and many of the members on our team to continue to work hard and get better everyday." Though it is all up to the individual players, the teams works, practices and wins together.

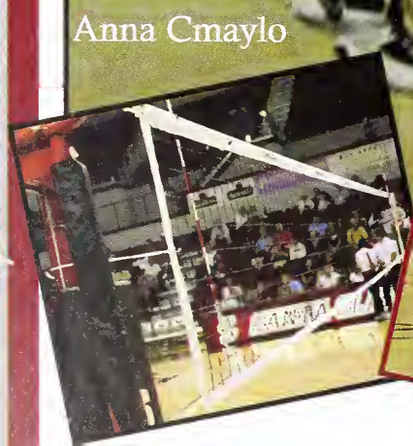
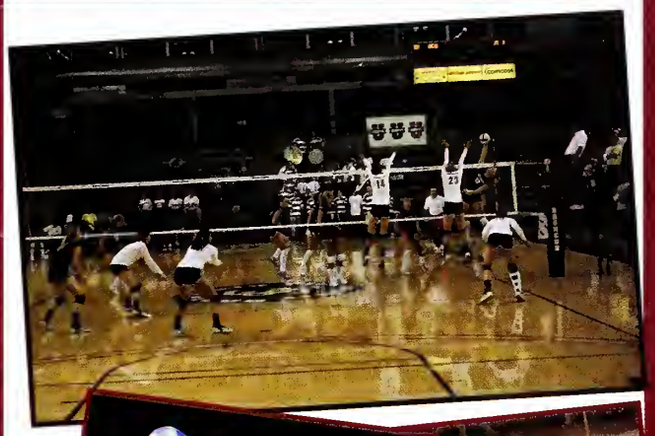
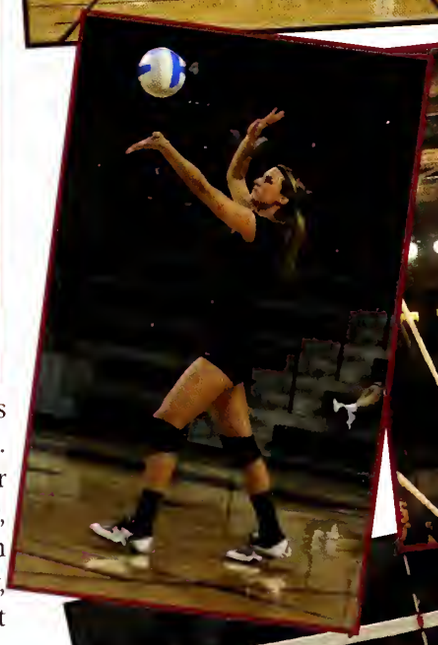
Anna Cmaylo



Women's Volleyball

Bump, Set, Spike It!





Most collegiate athletes enjoy four years of tough practices, close games and hard work. Anna Cmaylo's experience wasn't quite as typical. After tearing her labrum and bicep tendon in her hitting shoulder during the spring of her Junior year, she redshirted her Senior year, so she would be able to play a full four years. "It was a hard decision to make, but I wanted to finish my last year at Santa Clara healthy, and looking back, I'm really glad I did." Playing a varsity sport in college is a big commitment. Cmaylo was recruited out of high school and says it was definitely worth the commitment to play on the team. Since the beginning of her career at Santa Clara in August of 2004, she hasn't really known anything else. When she doesn't have volleyball to fill the hours, she usually struggles to find a way to amuse herself. Redshirting her senior year meant that Cmaylo didn't get to be a part of Senior Night with the girls she had played with for four years. "It was definitely weird," Cmaylo says, "I broke down knowing that I would never play with those girls again. There is a special bond forged through going through everything at the same time, and we definitely had that special bond."

GAME, SET & MATCH

Men's Tennis

Fall quarter was a time for training and preparation for the Men's Tennis team. They are one of the few Division 1 tennis teams that consist of almost all American players, mostly from the Pacific Northwest and Northern California, while other teams have players from around the world. For this young team it is not only about the game. The coaches also try to instill a sense of regularity and professionalism in their players through practices that can be used on and off the courts. Junior Thomas Hicks said, "Our practices are very organized. The coaches emphasize focus, fitness, and business-like professionalism on the court." The team practices five to six days a week. This year the guys say they are ready for whatever comes their way in the West Coast Conference, after working extremely hard Fall Quarter to be 100% on top of their game.

An Extra Umph!

Women's Tennis

The crowd goes quiet and all eyes follow the green ball bouncing back and forth between players. The arena is silent except for the sound of the tennis shoes scuffing the court or the rare "ump" the players add to their swings. For teammates of Santa Clara University's Women's Tennis team, this is nothing new. This year the team consists of nine players. Sophomore Courtney Hull said, "We are by far the loudest, most spirited team." Tennis is one sport which is about the individual game just as much as it is about your team game. Hull continues, "It is an individual sport, but you still are part of a team. When you walk out on the court, it doesn't matter if you are having a bad day because you can't be subbed out like other sports. You find a way to win, you find out what your opponent's strengths and weaknesses are, and you have to keep yourself composed. You have the support of your teammates, but you are still the one to run down every ball and not give up." Although the regular season has not yet begun, four new openings for the line up cause continuous competition between players. Hull said, "Every match counts, your attitude, and ability to win. Not only do I want to play, I can see how well we can do this year. I really want to prove to our athletic department and other teams that we do deserve recognition. I think some teams aren't looking at us as a threat, but I think they will be in for a big surprise this year."

Highlight On... Men's Rugby

S.C.U.T.S.

The Men's SCU Rugby Club, or SCUTS (Santa Clara University Touring Side), has a long and rich tradition (the team was founded in 1907) that includes Bay Area Championships, athletes that went on to be Olympians, and strong teams that were prominent forces in Bay Area College Rugby. After losing some of their momentum in the '70s and '80s, the team has begun to rebuild itself with the support of alums and under the direction of Coach Chris Kron, hired in '06, and a talented coaching staff. Said Junior Anthony Pastore, "Last year was great season... the experience at playoffs was a success that hadn't been tasted for a while at SCU." The team hopes to continue building their success, renew the strength of their program this season, and make it to the playoffs.

SCUTS' Roster:

An established threat at both the league and national championship levels, the Santa Clara Women's Club Volleyball Team hopes to continue in the tradition of the past Women's Club Volleyball teams and become League Champions for the 3rd year in a row this season. The Women's team also looks forward to competing at Nationals; a tournament in Las Vegas over spring break; the challenge of playing against UC Davis; and building the team for future years. With many new players this year, the team expects to work hard at practice, play tough in games, and have fun.

"As a Senior and four-year member of the Santa Clara Women's Club Volleyball team, I can honestly say that this club team, past and present, has been one of the best parts about the Santa Clara experience. Go Broncos!"

WOMEN'S VOLLEYBALL

Bump, Set, Spike!

This year the Santa Clara's Campus Recreation Club Sports program is made up of eighteen competitive clubs sports teams who play against other university teams, representing Santa Clara. The teams include Men's Ice Hockey, Men's Lacrosse, Men's Rugby, Men's Ultimate Frisbee, Men's Volleyball, Woman's Field Hockey, Women's Lacrosse, Women's Rugby, Women's Ultimate Frisbee, Women's Club Volleyball, Boxing, Cycling, Equestrian Team, Sailing, Shotokun Karate, Swimming, and Triathlon. Some of these clubs have been around for years and others are recent additions to club sports. Regardless, all clubs sports, however competitive, seem to thrive on community and on having fun.

Men's Lacrosse was installed as a club at Santa Clara over twenty five years ago. The program has built success based on tradition, dedication, and the pursuit of excellence. This club competes in the Western Collegiate Lacrosse League (Division A-Central) with games during the Winter and Spring Quarters. The team's goals for this season? Beat Sonoma State, play deep into the play offs, make the national tournament, and win all home games.

Women's Field Hockey is the newest addition to the Club Sports Program. This team provides SCU women with the opportunity to continue their passion for this sport or for beginners to learn the sport of field hockey.

The Equestrian Team consists of both competing and non-competing members. The team competes against the schools in Zone 8 of the Intercollegiate Horse Show Association (IHSA). As a club, their mission is to: "Facilitate camaraderie between SCU students sharing a love for horses, host social events, provide a quality riding program, establish a competitive intercollegiate equestrian team, and create a network of equestrian resources for horse-enthusiasts."

Making a Comeback

"This team has yet to realize it's actual potential with the talent it possesses. With the further development of the existing players and the trend of better and better players coming into the University each year, Santa Clara Hockey will be a premier program for years to come."
—Charles Clark

A relatively new club, the Men's Ice Hockey team may at first seem to have little to no history. However, upon closer investigation, one can learn that the first hockey team to represent Santa Clara was actually created in the 1930's! Since its "rebirth" on October 30th, 2006 as a club sport, many memories have been added to the team's history. According to Charles Clark, Co-President of the team, "The most memorable experience of this year has to be our trip to Flagstaff. It was our first air-travel trip as a team in the club's existence since 2007 so it was uncharted territory in terms of the leadership of the team. We all had to wake up pretty early to head to the airport and finding an effective way to transport 18 guys, their personal items, and 18 guys' hockey equipment was not discovered during this process. We had a series of two trucks running four trips each trying to collect the guys, all while combatting oversleeping. Once we finally were all on the plane, things seemed to relax. We arrived in Phoenix, loaded up five rental vans and headed to Flagstaff. We ended up losing both games to NAU, a squad that is heads and shoulders above any team in our league, but the experience of being on the road together, visiting the Grand Canyon, and getting to know one another was definitely a highlight of this year."

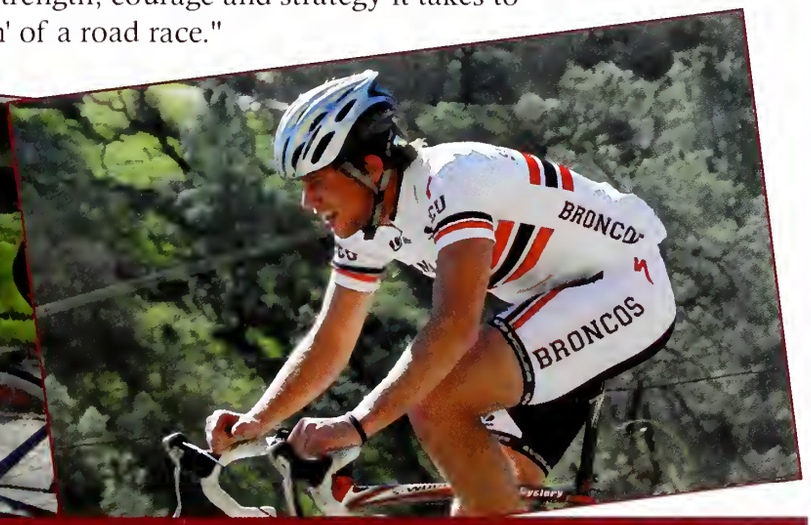
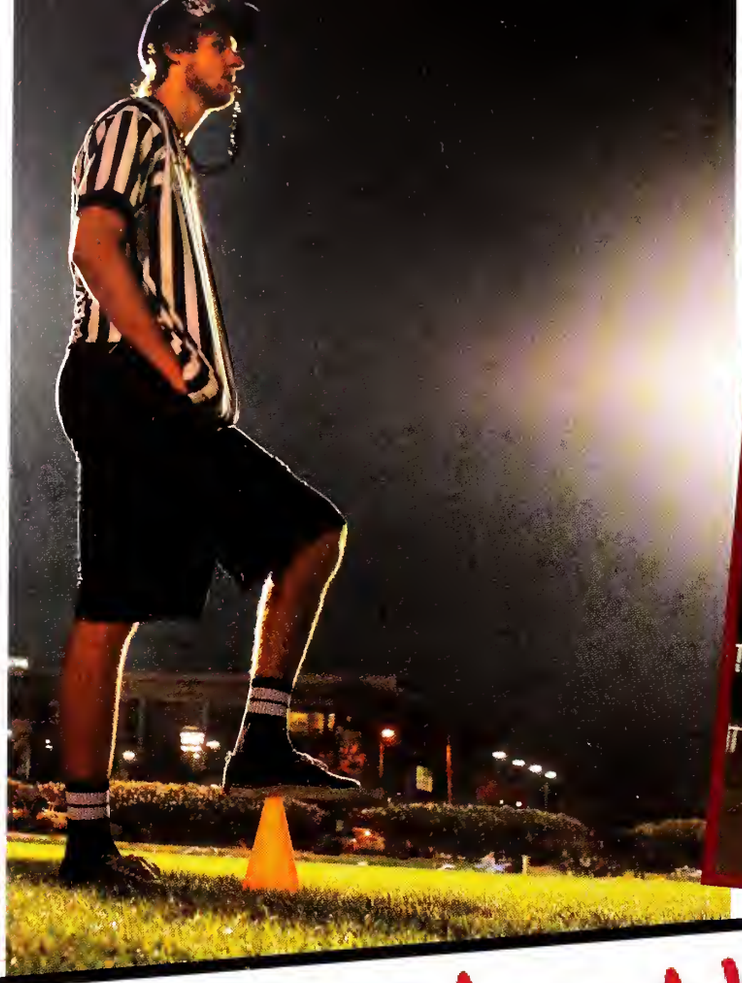
Setting High Standards on the Road

Photos by Clarke Thompson

With a young and talented squad, the team set a goal of fifteen top-five finishes, including five first place finishes for the season. However, their mission will be challenged during their three big races at Santa Barbara, Stanford, and UC Davis. Robert Lorenzen, Captain of the Cycling Team, commented, "If our team is to have a shot at qualifying for nationals, we need to have a solid race weekend at UC Davis." Training for victories against their toughest rivals and shooting for a clear goal of fifteen top-five finishes, this team truly understands how to compete at the highest level. Summarizing his overall experience, the captain explains, "Whether it's the beauty of watching the sun rise over the top of a mountain or the feeling of winning a hard fought race by outlasting your rivals, cycling is undoubtedly a magnificent sport both physically and mentally, but nothing reveals the true identity of the sport more than the sight of riders from opposing teams shaking hands after a highly contested race. Despite the rivalries, every racer acknowledges the mental challenge, physical strength, courage and strategy it takes to emerge as 'champion' of a road race."



"If I am going to go into the pain cave, I am going to take everyone with me."
—Robert Lorenzen, in reference to attacking on climbs

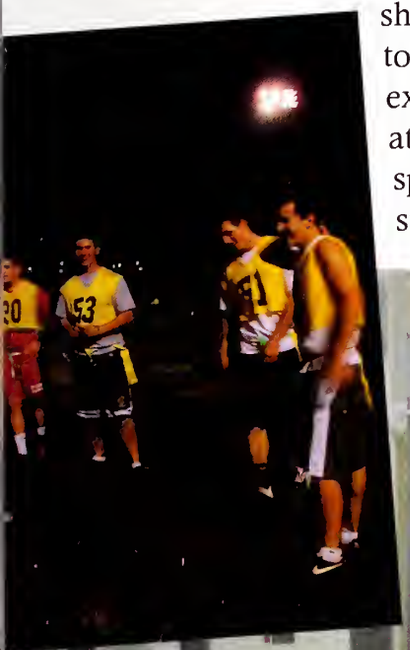


INTRAMURAL SPORTS

"I'm really excited to interact with my dormmates outside of the classroom and other daily activities. Since our intramural team includes both freshmen and sophomore players, it'll be a great opportunity for our dorm to bond"
—Jennifer Dyckman

"Intramurals are the perfect balance between competing and having fun, and if you win, you get a free shirt!"
—Kelsey Hoiluhan

Intramural Sports provide Santa Clara students with the freedom to enjoy the company of others while also promoting the friendly competition that regular pick-up games may not offer. The casual atmosphere of these sports not only attracts busy students who enjoy a change of scene, but also draws in students who are looking for activities to occupy themselves or have never tried the sport before. Whatever the reason, these games are always popular extracuricular activities among the student body. This past fall quarter, Michael Ford, Kelsey Houlihan, Jeffrey Wang and Morgan Wilhelm made up an Intramural Badminton team called "Big Bad Tads." After losing in the semi-finals last year, this team was ready to take home the trophy, or in the Intramural world, the free shirts! "We really got into it and really wanted to win," Kelsey Houlihan recalls. Combining exercise with fun memories, Intramural Sports at Santa Clara remind us of why we played sports during our childhood and encourages students to continue to play them today.



"I enjoyed playing Intramural Tennis this past fall quarter because it offered me a good way to improve my skills and a productive distraction when I wasn't studying."
—Christine Frea

Expanding Our Roots

PERSONALITIES

One perk of attending Santa Clara University is being part of the very extensive network of Broncos which spans from the Silicon Valley to across the globe. Alumni are eager to help fellow students and graduates with anything they need -- from giving advice to newcomers to finding jobs after graduation. A crutial part of the college experience is creating your own network of friends and classmates with whom you can work on assignments, create memories, and share your experiences while you're here. The most obvious way to meet new people at SCU is through your dorm and RLC. Beginning of the year events help everyone get to know each other and begin creating their networks. SCU also offers so many clubs, sports and committees that anyone can join which give people a chance to get to know a variety of fellow students on campus. Creating close relationships with people, both students and facutly, is extremely important as they can enrich your time at school as well as possibly help you in the future. For many people, college helps form the closest and longest lasting relationships of thier lives. Santa Clara provides an amazing environment for people to get to know each other and create friendships that will last forever!

We have planted our roots firmly into Santa Clara University.

Now, the time has come to jump into the real world and EXPAND OUR ROOTS!

"The best way to learn something is to teach it to somebody else."
-Fred Margolis

Kit, you have been learning by teaching for a long time now…as a student, as a teammate, as a coach, and yes, even as President of Ruff Riders. We've been blessed to be your very first students and we've learned to be better parents and people because of you. Keep on learning. Keep on teaching. The world has been waiting for some of its best lessons from you. Live your best dreams! We thank our God for the honor of being your parents.

Love,
Mom & Dad

Congratulations on your very special day!

With much love,

You've had many graduations – Inglemoor Co-op Preschool in 1992…Ben Franklin Elementary School in 1999…Forest Ridge School of the Sacred Heart Middle School in 2001… Bishop Blanchet High School in 2005…and now Santa Clara University in 2009.

Each step in your journey has been a leap of faith, and this is but another step. Never doubt your ability to succeed. Leap, and don't look back. The sky's the limit—you are prepared to accomplish whatever you set your mind and heart upon. We are so proud of all you've accomplished, but are prouder still of who you are! Congratulations to you from all of us.

God bless you always.
We love you so very much!
Love always,
Mom and Dad

Samantha E. Greene

Our Sami—we are so very, very proud of you. The determinations and personal resolve you showed in these last four years have been amazing. When it was easier to quit and return home to Dallas, realizing moving to school in California was harder than you thought possible, you stayed at Santa Clara. You grew as a person with the drama of your roommates your first couple of years and have made many new close friends. We are so proud that you have stayed on track and finished in four years. Every year you have grown so much, learned so much about yourself and you now know you can take on whatever this world will throw at you. You are truly an amazing and wonderful young lady. Your love for the little kids will keep you going for the rest of your life; never forget that feeling you get when you are around little people.

So now as your take on Graduate School you know you can always count on us for support and love. These next three years will go so fast and you will be learning so much with teaching and graduate school. Stay energized, focused, and always take care of yourself.
Our baby you always will be.

We love you XXXOOOOOXXXOO, Mom and Dad

Our SAMANTHA, our SAMI, dearest,
Your Grandmothers cannot express, fully express, our pride, our love and our unending admiration for you. You have earned our complete respect. We will support you in each new endeavor and we know you will continue to be successful in each new challenge. You are joy, and love, and kindness, in one beautiful soul. We thank God for you each day and for HIM, giving us a granddaughter like you to cherish.

Your Grandmothers,
Mick and Annie

You did it! Words cannot describe how proud I am of your accomplishments. You never lost sight of that finish line. The determination and focus had inspired so many around you, especially me. Enjoy these moments, babe, you deserve every second of it. As we have grown together, I have realized the passion you hold is rare. With this I've learned you were never meant to follow, instead you will leave a trail for others to follow.

Congratulations Babe!

Baby Brother,
I wanted to say how proud I am to call you my brother. Watching you grow from a little nerd trying to ride his three-wheeler down the hill to a handsome man. Words cannot explain how proud I am on who you have become. I wish you the very best in your future to come.

I LOVE YOU BABY BROTHER!

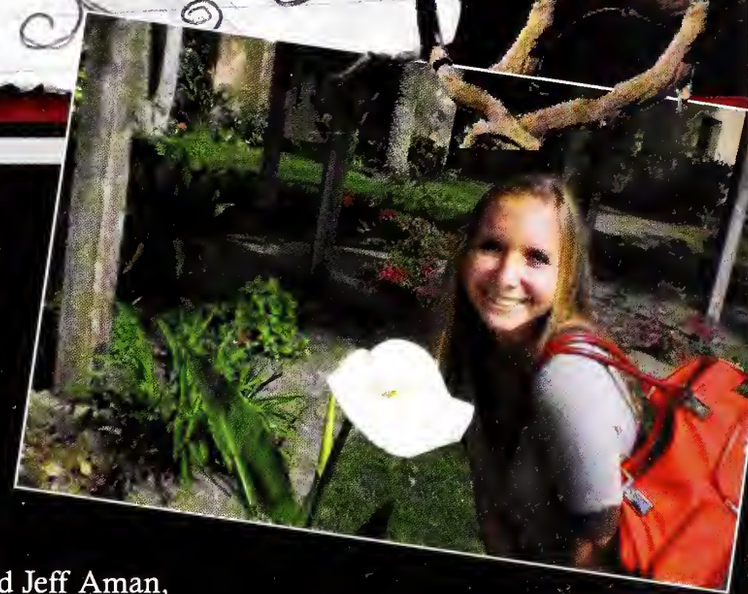
Letter from the Editor



I would like to thank my amazing staff this year for all their time and dedication. I really hoped to hire a well-rounded, functional, and friendly staff, and I couldn't have asked for anyone better than those I now work with. This staff is incredibly talented artistically and has so many key skills that will propel them through the future.

Outside of those that supported me on our staff, I would like to thank my family for their encouragement over the years: my mother, father, newlyweds Jackie and Jeff Aman, and Ryan and Beth Heap back in Kansas City. My friends I have made here at Santa Clara University have become my family in my new home, here in the bay area. Thank you Kyle, Erika, Megan, Reese, Alex, Francesca, Libby, Lauren, Kim, Ariana, and Nicole. You all mean the world to me.

As much as I would like to reminisce on the four amazing years I have had here, in reality, my time at Santa Clara University is just beginning. I am blessed to be able to stay in the bay area following graduation and won't be cutting any ties with SCU. I am excited to expand my education out in the "real world" and apply all that has matured and developed my mind over the years. I have a true love for Santa Clara University because my experiences have been nothing but positive. I owe so much to all of the professors, advisors, and students that have shaped me along the way. I hope to repay them for their gifts by influencing and encouraging change in my own community.

Joining the community of Santa Clara University was one of the best choices I have ever made and I want to thank all that assisted me in achieving my goals. Thank you to the parents of SCU students and all the support you provide for your children. They are so thankful for all you do and know they will make you proud.

Congratulations Class of 2009. Good luck in all that is to come and don't forget those who got you to where you are today, including yourself!

Class of 2009

The Redwood cracks me up. Especially when designers call me, panicking about getting their deadlines done in time. They don't realize it, but half the time I don't even know when the deadline is. The truth is, whether I'm hottubbing in Santa Cruz, scheming about buying Redwood North Face jackets, or listening to my team members' latest ideas (i.e."New Name for The Redwood: The Scissor"), I absolutely love spending my hours on this publication. I am surrounded by some very talented students whom I respect very much. I would say our biggest shortfall is the fact that our candy drawer has sucked for the last five months. But if that is it, I would say we are doing a pretty good job!

- Caitlin Millar '12, Design Editor

This year was a lot of fun. Designing pages for the book and adding little bits of myself to those pages was always satisfying. Working with the staff and going on our retreat was a great experience. I met new people and created new friends.

- Ali Reimer, Designer

As a Freshman, joining The Redwood this year allowed me to really discover all that Santa Clara has to offer. Although deadlines could be stressful it was great getting to know this staff, especially on the Santa Cruz retreat, and working on this publication. I hope people enjoy the book!

- Irene Kearney '12, Designer

It's really amazing how the yearbook can be stylistically cohesive and also showcase the creativity and individuality of each designer and photographer. I truly hope everyone enjoys reminiscing the past year while looking through this yearbook. I know I will definitely have fun looking at the different sections and remembering the people I met, the facts I learned, and all the memories that surrounded each page. A special thanks to the staff for the great times, especially the girls, for the amazing talks that kept me entertained and sane. Much Loves,

- Keesa Robinson '12, Designer

I'd just like to say thank you to the Redwood staff. I've met some great, hard-working people that I'll miss so much. To our editor Jenny, you are the love of my life. Spectacular job this year Jennifer.

- Kyle Iwamoto '09, Buisness Director

I loved working for the yearbook. There was never a dull moment and it was a great time. The creativity and thoughtfulness of all the employees was above and beyond what I expected. All in all I am very glad I was part of it.

-Sean Whitney '09, Photographer

Being a part of yearbook has been extremely fun this year. I appreciate all the friends I made from being a part of the staff!

- Julie Pang '12, Designer

Another year, a great staff, another run on the candy drawer, and another fantastic and saucy yearbook promotional sign. When these powers combine you only get one thing: another kick ass yearbook! Job well done! I couldn't be more proud to be rooted at The Redwood.
